To Whom It May Concern,

I am pleased to give Lora Anderson my highest personal and professional recommendation. She reported directly to me while I served as Executive Director at Family Solutions, until my retirement in the summer of 2024.

During my tenure leading the agency, Lora was my trusted problem-solver. Although she reported directly to me, she consistently demonstrated senior-level insight, initiative, and strategic thinking. I relied on her to resolve organizational challenges and operational bottlenecks. She excels at seeing the big picture, quickly identifying root causes, anticipating problems, and developing practical solutions that strengthen the agency as a whole.

What I appreciate most about Lora is her heart and her integrity. Her drive has always been to genuinely improve the organization and support the people around her. She is deeply honest, kind, process-oriented, and simply willing to do whatever it takes to get the job done right. Collaborating with her was a true pleasure, and I came to value her as much for her warmth and character as for her intellect.

Lora's contributions transformed our agency's administrative processes. She overhauled several key processes by applying exceptional technical and automation expertise. She also brought a thorough command of regulatory compliance, including Oregon Administrative Rules and CARF accreditation standards, helping ensure the agency consistently operate at the highest level.

After many years as an Executive Director, I recognize strong leadership potential, and Lora clearly possesses it. She combines sharp analytical ability and operational discipline with a genuine, people-first leadership style. Any organization would be fortunate to have her in any role, and I recommend her with complete confidence.

Sincerely,

To Whom It May Concern,

When Lora Anderson's resume first crossed my desk, I almost passed. On paper, she was clearly overqualified for the role, and I worried she would quickly outgrow us. Hiring her anyway proved to be a masterclass in why you should always bet on exceptional talent. Over the past year, Lora didn't just manage our HR functions, she elevated them.

Operating across six 24/7 residential facilities and an outpatient clinic, Lora stepped in to support our employees across every stage of their tenure. She has a rare gift for combining sharp analytical skill with genuine human empathy. Rather than applying generic fixes to operational challenges, she digs into the root causes. When one of our residential locations was hit with a staggering 90% turnover rate, Lora partnered closely with leadership, identified critical gaps in our early tenure support, and built structured 30/60/90 day onboarding milestones. Under her guidance, turnover dropped 65% at the struggling site.

Beyond her work with our staff, Lora became a key strategic partner to our leadership team. She transformed raw workforce, compliance, and training data into clear, actionable reports that became a regular staple at our board meetings. She also spearheaded our Relias LMS compliance and drove the rollout of our new Paychex HRIS, handling everything from backend process development to hands on staff training.

What speaks most to Lora's character and work ethic is how she ended her time with us. Knowing she was leaving, she authored a comprehensive, step by step Standard Operating Procedure manual so her successor could hit the ground running. She didn't just do her job while she was here; she made sure the organization would continue to thrive long after her departure.

Lora left us solely due to family geography, with no relatives on the East Coast, she relocated to the West Coast, following her child who had moved to pursue higher education. Had circumstances been different, we would have kept her indefinitely. Lora is a rare find who brings equal parts strategic insight, operational rigor, and heart to her work, and any team would be incredibly fortunate to have her.

Sincerely,

To Whom It May Concern,

I am pleased to recommend Lora Anderson, who served as our Business Office Manager from January 2017 through April 2021.

When I inherited National Builders and Acceptance Corporation, I was overwhelmed. I had run my small business, NealCo, for years and managed my seven rental properties without issue. But National Builders was a very different situation. Out of more than 100 units, barely half were occupied, many were in disrepair, and the corporation itself needed structure and direction.

I originally set out to hire an office manager, someone to set up QuickBooks, handle payroll, pay bills, and show apartments. Within weeks, Lora made it clear that what I actually needed was a true business leader. She stepped in and immediately began rebuilding the foundation of the company.

Lora rebuilt our website, created marketing materials, transitioned us from a ledger system to QuickBooks, and developed policies, procedures, and business development plans. She kept us on budget and on schedule through a full renovation of a three-story apartment building that was taken down to the studs. She also came up with the strategy to use several properties with a last minute lease cancellations due to Covid as housing for traveling nurses, an idea that proved brilliant given its proximity to UPMC.

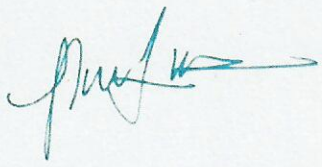

Her work helped transform a struggling business into a thriving operation worth three times that amount.

She also implemented a tenant portal that became the backbone of our operations, tracking leases, rent, maintenance, and communication. In truth, she became the backbone of the company.

Unfortunately for us, her family relocated out of state, and we lost the best thing that ever happened to this company.

I recommend Lora without hesitation. Any company would be lucky to have her.

Sincerely,

Neal Scoratow

To Whom It May Concern,

It is my distinct privilege to write this letter of endorsement on behalf of Ms. Lora Anderson. Having worked closely with Ms. Anderson in my capacity as Chief Executive Officer at WorkWell, I can attest without reservation to her exceptional clinical expertise, administrative rigor, and unwavering professionalism. Shortly following her appointment, Ms. Anderson's outstanding capability prompted her selection as our primary Case Management Contact for Synergy Insurance, WorkWell's premier client account and single largest revenue contributor.

In this pivotal role, Ms. Anderson oversaw a demanding active caseload exceeding 100 complex workers' compensation matters. These cases required meticulous coordination across a multifaceted network of stakeholders, including injured personnel, clinical care providers, employer representatives, and insurance underwriters. Ms. Anderson consistently demonstrated acute diagnostic judgment in identifying procedural and interpersonal barriers to claim resolution, deftly aligning disparate interests to secure optimal outcomes while adhering strictly to statutory and regulatory frameworks. Her stewardship of the Synergy Insurance portfolio was exemplary; in addition to managing daily operational dynamics, she regularly represented our practice alongside me in executive level monthly progress reviews with Synergy leadership.

Beyond her primary case management duties, Ms. Anderson exhibited a sophisticated capacity for data driven analytical oversight. By evaluating aggregate injury metrics and claims trends across insured entities, she identified elevated risk factors and formulated proactive interventions focused on preventative care, institutional risk mitigation, and targeted client education.

Ms. Anderson is a professional of rare caliber, composed under pressure, thorough in documentation, and highly adept in executive stakeholder engagement. She possesses the intellectual discipline and leadership acuity required to excel in senior healthcare, risk management, or organizational strategy roles. I offer her my highest possible recommendation.

Sincerely,

William Yanakos

To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing to offer my strongest possible recommendation for Lora Anderson, who served as Operations Manager and functioned as my second in command throughout her seven year tenure. Her impact on our organization was profound, measurable, and instrumental in scaling our company from a startup operation to a successful acquisition valued at over $1,000,000.

From the outset, Lora took full ownership of our daily company operations. What distinguished her was not simply her ability to manage core functions, but her talent for integrating them, ensuring every department operated cohesively, efficiently, and in direct alignment with our strategic growth goals. She designed and implemented the internal processes, reporting structures, and operational controls that became the backbone of our business, supporting scalable expansion while protecting profitability and service quality.

As my right hand leader, Lora consistently translated ownership level priorities into clear, actionable operational strategies. She excelled at leading cross functional teams, resolving complex bottlenecks, and maintaining rigorous accountability across the organization. I trusted her implicitly with high stakes decision making, confidential matters, and mission critical initiatives.

Over her seven years with the company, Lora's operational discipline, strategic insight, and leadership were central to our growth trajectory. Her ability to build sustainable systems and elevate team performance directly driven the valuation and operational maturity that led to our successful sale.

Lora possesses a rare combination of high level strategic vision and hands on operational expertise. I recommend her without reservation for any operational leadership role. Any organization would benefit immensely from her capability, drive, and reliability, and I am confident she will deliver exceptional results wherever she goes next.

If additional information is ever needed, please feel free to contact me directly.

Sincerely,

To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing this letter to warmly recommend Lora Anderson for employment, wherever her career takes her next.

When I hired Lora, she was just beginning graduate school and looking for employment while completing her degree. While she was at the start of her professional journey, she interviewed exceptionally well and showed tremendous potential. Hiring her was one of the best decisions I've made.

Lora was initially hired to be my assistant, but she quickly took on managing operations for the Cherokee Strip Conference Center, a crucial partnership we established to ensure Main Street's long term success. Lora handled this huge responsibility beautifully, overseeing facility scheduling, contracts, client needs, and reporting. She also built us our very first website, opening up brand new ways for us to market our downtown businesses and support major community events like Oktoberfest and Enid Lights Up the Plains. Her presentations and reporting consistently made her a favorite of our Board of Directors and the City Council.

During her time with us, Lora was bright, inquisitive, and eager to soak up every piece of knowledge about working in a non-profit. She is someone who works hard and stays focused on personal and professional growth. I truly believe there is nothing she cannot achieve, and I have no doubt her future is bright. I am grateful to have played a role in her development and give her my highest recommendation.

Sincerely,

Lindy Chandler
